

Isaac Ukeleghe

I came to the UK in 1999 as a young Botany graduate looking for avenues to start my working life. While working in security, an opportunity to become a trainer came up which I gladly took and that decision and passion for touching people's lives gave birth to my training and recruitment company. Apart from being an assessor and an internal quality assurer, I also hold a diploma in teaching in the lifelong learning sector, a leadership and management qualification in care service, and a national certificate in occupational safety and health (Nebosh). I am a member of the institute of Occupational Safety and Health (IOSH).

My interest in STaSS came through the work I do both in training and in care where I have witnessed first-hand the effects of HIV and AIDS on many loved ones. Having an opportunity to contribute something positive to the lives of those infected or affected by the condition is such a rewarding feeling. Outside work, I love playing with my wonderful kids and practising my Christian beliefs.
